Welcome to the Educational Studies Program’s Fall HSSP! This is not a school. The teachers here aren’t worried about tests, papers, and grades — only in helping you learn their favorite subject. Have some fun!

To help create an enjoyable community of learners this semester, please read the following to get a better idea of what the HSSP experience is like.

Expectations for all HSSP students:

- You’re here because you want to be here, not because your parents or your school made you come.
- Respect your fellow students and your teachers, behaving politely and cooperatively both inside and outside the classroom.
- Try to speak your mind without disrupting the learning process.
- Try your best in your courses. If you have to miss a class, please let your teachers know; they can help you catch up.
- Realize that you are a guest in the MIT community, and conduct yourself accordingly.
- Refrain from swearing, drugs, and other indecent activities.

In return, you can expect the following from the program directors and teachers:

- Guidance. If you have a question about anything, the program directors should answer it or refer you to someone who can. (The directors’ e-mail address is hssp-director@mit.edu).
- Advance notification of class cancellations. All classes start at 5 minutes after the listed time. If your teacher is not in the classroom, please notify the directors in the HSSP office.
- Advance notification of lunchtime activities and other optional events.
- Detailed plans of all courses, provided in advance by the teachers.
- Interesting, engaging lessons and activities. If any of your classes are poorly taught, please notify the directors.
- A great learning experience.

By signing below, I confirm that I have read and understand everything written above. I understand that ESP cannot accommodate students who are unwilling or unable to meet these expectations.
